Abstract

A programmable controller such as an HVAC controller that provides a confirmation message to a user indicating that a parameter that has been modified by the user has been or will be saved. Such a confirmation message may help assure a user that 5   their program modifications have been accepted and/or saved by the controller, thereby reducing the anxiety some users feel when programming such controllers.